Perfect book for a teen girl

I had the opportunity to read through this teen girls' bible study by Hannah Duggan, and it was just mind-blowingly amazing. You could really sense the author's passion coming through in what she wrote. The entire bible study was sprinkled with engaging stories and challenges. In case you can't tell, this definitely inspired me to "dare greatly" and to grow closer to God. It's an amazing wakeup call in the midst of a life of busyness.

I had the privilege of facilitating a bible study for senior high girls for my daughter and her friends recently using this book. I can not say enough good things about this book. First of all, I think it's the perfect book for teenage girls as Hannah used easy to understand, relevant life experiences, the girls can relate to. Secondly, the daily guides are short and concise, and on point, taking into consideration the attention span of most girls in this age group. Thirdly, the issues discussed are all the issues high school girls typically deal with. The girls did not have a hard time answering most of the questions as they are right in the middle of dealing with these issues. Even though the book is for high school girls, I can say that most topics are still appropriate for adults, as I learned from these, too (well, not the topic on boys...I am past that since I found my man :-)). In fact, as most bible study facilitators experience, although I lead the group, I learned from it, too, probably as much as these girls did. There are different dares every week, hence the title "Dare Greatly", but the dares are practical and doable. Even after the study was done, I encouraged the girls to go back to this book and soak in the scriptures mentioned in the book a little more, especially, if they felt they breezed through the book just so they can do their "homework". As the facilitator, I found it more fun to hold the studies at home, where the girls can just relax. Since the studies were done on a school night, I decided to include dinner before the discussion and girl, did that just made the studies more fun and relaxing. There's nothing like a good food to start our time together. I also make sure we have time to share our concerns to pray about. By the way, I thought the "word of the week" and "quote of the week", may not be as useful but I was wrong. I made games out of these on our "graduation day" and it was a blast to see them dig their heads in with their moms to match the quotes with their sources and the words with their meaning. We held our final study in a hotel out of town in time for Mother's Day weekend, with the girls and their moms. We had a great time! Not only did we have a wonderful time talking, praying, playing, and eating, with our daughters but we went for a shopping trip after, too! We even got to meet the author, Hannah Duggan, by face-time (we had to arrange this ahead of time)! The girls were stoked meeting her! I can only pray and hope the lessons learned from the study will impact them for the rest of their lives.God bless Hannah. She definitely is gifted in writing. Highly recommend this book!!!

I love how this book challenges girls to step up. Dare Greatly is fun, fast paced, and meets girls right in the challenges that they are facing in today's society. The author talks to the girls like they are smart and capable young women. Because there are 5 days of devotions between the chapters, it's a great book to do as a weekly Bible study with your small group. Highly recommend!

Wonderfully talented young woman. Thank you for encouraging our daughters in the way of the Word

I do not remember buying this
