Customer Reviews

Christopher Gruver's career in modeling was the beginning of his education on the visual art of photography. Working with so many talented fashion photographers encouraged his eye for photography to bloom. While living in Boulder, Colorado, Å Gruver discovered his intuitive work with botanical photography. "When I photograph a flower, there is a communication that develops between my subject and myself. This unique and living dynamic is what I hope to share with the viewer. If the viewer can sense that which lives in and is available to us in these plants, then my work is successful. I have also come to realize that our respective arts have the ability to cultivate awareness and peace."

I purchase this calendar every year. I never tire of the photographer's unique and graceful presentation of both familiar and exotic flowers. It has led me to a deeper appreciation for the beauty of creation. The quotations are thoughtfully chosen and inspiring, but offered in a small unobtrusive font, so that the photography always takes center stage. This calendar is perfect for both personal and professional settings.

I have purchased this calendar for the last three years. Christopher Gruver is a gifted artist who brings flowers to life in this stunning calendar. The "poetic interludes" that accompany the photos are timeless. "Now and then it's good to pause in our pursuit of happiness and just be happy" That poetic interlude is for the month of September (my birthday month) and is accompanied by a photo of a Crazy Gerbera. Amber Lotus produces the calendars and, "is committed to socially and environmentally sustainable business practices". I support all companies that are environmental stewards. You should too!

As a flower photographer myself, I am enjoying this calendar very much. Also appreciate all the information on the grid, such as international holidays, moon phases, and planetary information. Recommend.
