James Cateridge is Senior Lecturer in Film Studies at Oxford Brookes University. He researches and teaches British cinema, film policy and the international film industry. James has also worked with the Arts Council of England and as a film journalist for the London Film Festival.

Pros: A chapter on experimental film (watched a lot of short films lately online), "don't fear the theory" sidebars (understand perspectives is great, but may not agree on all; IMO let interpretations be interpretations) Cons: As a Disney fan, some theories get stale afterwards (racist, sexist, etc.)

Very easy to understand.

Easy to follow and a great place for beginners and novices to start.
